The Good Acre

The Good Acre is a Cargill Foundation partner organization. The Good Acre operates on a hub-and-spoke model with food and helps connect independent farmers to consumers looking for healthy produce – regardless of income. They're doing a lot right now for the BIPOC community which is Black, Indigenous, and People of Color so this ties into the work of the Foundation to support diversity.

The Good Acre is looking for 8 volunteers a shift, and the volunteer task would be weighing/bagging produce and then packing the boxes for the farm share from 10-11:30 am.
